Summary of my recommendations:

Year End Accounts and balances

A Council will often have Accounts prepared – using the headings in the Cash Book. The totals of these headings will then inform the AGAR Accounting Statement. The Accounts will also have comparative years which is a useful internal control tool. There is no legal requirement to do this, but it is an informative exercise.

Council to note that the year end balance should be divided between Working balance (half of the money needed to get through the next financial year) and the remaining monies should be identified as Earmarked Reserves. A Statement of these reserves should be given at the year end.

Data Protection

The Information Commissioners Officer would recommend identifiable council specific e mail addresses to separate personal e mails from those sent in relation to council work. The Clerk has a council specific e mail address, and the need to have similar for councilors could be seen as unnecessary in a small council like BPC. When the Data Protection Policy is reviewed, it would be useful to take the opportunity of revisiting the seven principles of data protection. Induction training for new councilors includes training on Data Protection and any new councilors should be encouraged to attend this training. Data Protection is a risk identified on the Council's Risk Management Policy and training should be added as a way of minimizing risk.
